The arts in language learning

Francesca Lambert

Francesca Lambert has been at TEB for five years having graduated in Arabic and Islamic Studies. She's presented some of her ideas at ACEIA previously and at the annual FECEI event in Madrid. Her teaching techniques are exciting and fun with a strong emphasis on humour as a teaching tool! Francesca teaches groups of all ages from babies to teens, having a main focus on YL. The wide range of students keeps her motivated- variety is the spice of life!

When it comes to language learning an old saying rings true: a picture is worth a thousand words. Our students have many different learning profiles and we as teachers can help them acquire concepts and information through the arts as well as through conventional language forms

To C1 and beyond!

Katy Hornby

Director of Studies at McGinty School of English in Almeria, having previously taught all ages and levels predominantly Cambridge exams, I am DELTA qualified and passionate about teaching. I love a challenge and one of the biggest I've faced is making C1/C2 and adult classes fun whilst addressing the complexities these higher levels present.

Over the last few years we have seen rapid progression in terms of what an acceptable minimum level of English is. B1 used to be standard and B2 made you stand out, now many people have B2 and more and more employers are asking for C1 or C2. With this in mind, this talk aims to demonstrate some useful activities which will both push your students but let them have fun along the way.

Jolly Phonics

Philippa Cole

BA Hons in Spanish Studies at the University of Hull (UK). Diploma in Managing Language Learning and Teaching at the University of Hull. Masters in Teaching for Secondary Compulsory Education, University of Almería. Philippa has been immersed in the area of bilingualism as an ESL expert for over 15 years, successfully implementing Jolly Phonics in the EYFS programme. Together with the local government, Philippa has implanted Jolly Phonics in state run nursery schools throughout the province and gives training sessions both nationally and internationally.

Multi – sensory interactive teaching over a 7 year programme, Jolly Phonics provides you with all you need to offer students to ensure a complete, systematic and fun language learning journey. Developed by teachers for teachers, the method offers real solutions to real second language acquisition problems. The workshop aims to provide an insight into what Jolly Phonics can do for you and more importantly, for your students when it is used to its full potential.

Helping Students to help themselves - Delayed Error Correction

Ryan McGuckin

An enthusiastic teacher and teacher trainer from Brighton, England who has been teaching for 7 years. Ryan has worked in Germany, Spain and Czech Republic as well as teaching students from all over the world in Summer Schools. He has given conference sessions in Czech Republic and is currently Director of Studies for Odyssey Language Academy.

Make correcting more fun and help students learn from their mistakes!

In this session, I will look at ways you can use Delayed Error Correction techniques to improve students' ability to auto correct and correct their peers by using practical and interactive activities. By using delayed error correction techniques, the classroom environment improves and you get a classroom full of learners wanting to help each other and themselves.

Observations from Observations

Borja Uruñuela

Borja is General Director at St. James in Seville. He has been working closely with his teachers for 25 years and one of his main responsibilities is to maintain the quality of teaching at St. James. Borja is also Vicepresident and Head of Training for ACEIA. As a speaker he gives talks at conferences in Spain.

In this talk I'll share my conclusions after having observed dozens of English teachers in the classroom. I will highlight the good practices I've seen as well as the areas that I consider essential in teaching but that I haven't seen as much of as I would have expected. This talk is aimed at managers, directors, directors of studies and anyone who is interested in reflecting on what's going on in the English class.

English through the years – from babies to primary school

Karen Muckey

Karen Muckey is from Michigan and has lived in Seville since 2003. Prior to teaching English, she was a Spanish teacher and has always enjoyed teaching languages and encouraging students to study abroad. Over the years, Karen has taught all ages and levels, but she now specializes in very young learners and babies. Her youngest students are only 4-months old!

Children are now beginning English classes at very early ages, which presents the challenge of ensuring that students are progressing and producing more English at earlier ages. In this session, we'll discuss how to maximize children's development at different ages, starting from babies through to primary school. We'll look at the importance of recycling language in order to create a strong base and impressive oral abilities.

Bilingual teaching with new technologies

Lee Ann Bussolari

Lee Ann has degrees in both Spanish and English philology as well as a Master in Applied Linguistics. She is an Expert in Digital Competences for Teaching and Learning and is currently doing her Doctorate at the UAL investigating new technologies and bilingual teaching. She has been working as a bilingual teacher since 1995 and is a workshop leader and speaker. Lee Ann is also the Team Leader for Exams Andalucía in the province of Almería.

New technologies play an import role in teaching in the 21st century. There are many ways to use technologies in meaningful ways to help extend learning and to connect learning to real English around the world. If you are looking for fun and easy ways to incorporate ICT into your classroom, this is the talk for you!
